CORRUPTION
IN THE

HOUSING SECTOR

WE ANSWER ONLY TO THE PEOPLE

"REPORT CORRUPTION & ACTIVELY PROMOTE ACCOUNTABLE LEADERSHIP."

Lack of decent housing is the plight of many South Africans.

Although government has had a well-funded low-cost housing programme for years, it is marred by corruption involving public officials and in some instances elected public representatives. The allocation process of such houses is often manipulated, where applicants are often asked to pay bribes just to jump the housing queue.

Types of corruption found in the housing sector:

Procurement

Tender processes are not followed and contracts are awarded to family and friends of housing officials & Politicians.

Irregularities in the allocation of houses

Houses are allocated to specific individuals due to political connections or bribery.

Bribery

Local councillors and public officials accept bribes to speed up allocation for a house or receive a second one.

Fraud

False identities are used to obtain low-cost houses. Individuals either use the identities of deceased people or of people who are not eligible to receive an RDP house.

Unauthorised allocation of houses

Local councillors sell RDP houses or allocate them to friends or family members.

We encourage everyone living in South Africa to report corruption to us via our various platforms:
